ZEPPELIN AIRSHIPS AGAIN RAID LONDON

Fifty Persons Are Reported Killed and Property Damage Is Said to Be Small.

London, Oct. 14.—Zeppelin airships have raided London again, dropping bombs; 55 persons are declared to have been killed and thirty-four injured. The material damage, it is said, is small.

The home office shortly after midnight made the following report:

"A Zeppelin raid was made yesterday evening over a portion of the London area, when a certain number of incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped. The material damage done was small. A few fires resulted, but they were quickly put out by the fire brigade. The admiralty will issue a statement today when particulars are available.

"At present it is only possible to say that no public buildings were injured and the casualties so far reported are 55 women and men and about thirty-four injured. With the exception of a soldier killed, all these were civilians.

"These figures include all the casualties reported at 11:45 o'clock Wednesday evening.

The Psychology of Kissing.

Supreme Court Justice Scudder of New York gasped in astonishment last Wednesday when he heard the sworn statement of Warren A. Brown, a prominent Long Island real estate dealer, that he never in all of his life kissed or hugged a woman.

The court official held their breath. "Never kissed a woman in all your life?" asked Justice Scudder doubtfully.

"With the exception of my mother, no, your honor."

Here is a record. It is needless to say that this kissless man is the defendant in a suit brought by a college professor for the alienation of his wife's affections.

The psychologists, for all of their trumpeting, seem to be paying little attention to the really important problems of human life. Their disquisitions upon the mechanism of perception, the incidents of cognition and the subconsciousness of attention are copious and instructive, but so far they have failed to tell us why men disfigure their faces with beards, why no one expects intelligence in a baseball fan, or why it is that kissing a pretty girl is so diabolically pleasant.

They might begin with the New York defendant and ascertain why he has, for so many years, never indulged in the osculatory possibility.

It might be urged that kissing on the purely physical side is plainly not an agreeable experience. Its chief sensation is one of asphyxia, and asphyxia, no matter what the stage setting may be, is inevitably painful.

One may often observe proof of it on the stage in the soul kiss, which is usually as long as the cadenza of a violin concerto, or about 20 measures in common time.

Kissing in private is not quite so forbidding, for no one, not even the girl herself the amateur to show the finished virtuosity of the professional. After 10 or 12 seconds of continuous contact he is permitted to withdraw his face to a safe distance and to resume, for a short while, the interrupted business of respiration. But even this recurring hiatus is not sufficient to eliminate, entirely, the discomfort of successive contact. After four or five hours of kissing, even the amateur has lost more breath than the professional whose efforts, while more intense, are less protracted.

No man can accommodate his lungs without damage great or small. A tight collar, a fishbone in the tongs, a bad fright or a sharp blow over the Adam's apple are just as destructive as kissing.

And yet people will kiss and even go to great pains to get a chance. Why do they do it? It is what the New York defendant would no doubt like to know.

Why do men risk life and limb to kiss some other man's wife who, in the light of dispassionate examination, may prove to be fat and fraudulent? Why do they spend hours kissing some silly ingenue or sinister widow? Why do they put kissing in the front rank of stimulants with alcohol, politics and auto speeding?

The problem is indeed one of abysmal perplexity. The act of kissing, considered physically, is no more alluring than the act of getting shaved. At its best it interferes unbenevolently with the normal psychological procedures. At its worst it produces acute distress. The answer to the problem must be sought on the psychic side. Kissing inflames the imagination, not as an act but as an idea. It makes its appeal not to the nerves but to the soul. Supreme Court Justice Scudder will have to take the statement of Defendant Brown under advisement. — Commercial Appeal.

Stanley as Governor.

If the Democrats will only come to the polls on November 2nd and vote for Stanley and the entire Democratic ticket, there is no earthly reason why the entire ticket should not win by an immense majority. We all know that both Senate and House are absolutely safely Democratic. Then why is the use of electing Morrow governor? He would only be a figurehead. His votes would amount to nothing for they could be passed over his head at any time. With Stanley as Governor the Democratic party will be in a position to do some valuable Democratic legislation. The state would then receive adequate compensation from its law makers. If Morrow should be elected, all the people could hope for would be time and money thrown to the winds. Our Republican friends who have the good of the Old Commonwealth at heart, and especially the independent voters can readily see the uselessness in voting for Morrow.

Vote for Stanley and the entire Democratic ticket and thereby render your state valuable service.

Good Peanut Crop.

Robert Vickery brought to this office yesterday a nice bunch of peanuts that he raised on his place just east of the city. He has about two acres of them, and says that they will have about fifty bushels of the peanuts and about two tons of hay which will make it a paying crop. — Princeton Leader.

JUDGE LINDSEY IS EJECTED FROM COURT

Called Attorney a Liar and Grabbed Him By Coat.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 15.—Ben B. Lindsey, judge of Denver's juvenile court was ordered ejected from the criminal division of the district court here by Judge W. D. Wright. The court's action was taken when Lindsey contradicted statements made by Attorney J. J. Sullivan, using an emphatic term, and grabbed Sullivan by the coat.

Sullivan was presenting arguments for the defense in the case of Frank L. Rose, on trial charged with conspiracy to ruin Lindsey. He declared Lindsey had toured the country delivering lectures in which he maligned Denver.

At this point Judge Lindsey called Sullivan a liar and grabbed him by the coat.

Court bailiffs sprang to each man and under the court's order took Judge Lindsey from the room.
